

CARSON JORGENSEN

I always believed that endorsements didn't mean much. Which is why you see very few from me. The last thing that I want anyone telling me, is how I should vote. So, I am not going to tell you how to vote. What I am going to tell you is what I would do if I were voting.

When I look for someone to support, I want someone that I can trust to tell me the hard things. Someone who works hard, listens, and communicates effectively. That person has always been Mac Sims. I have watched Mac selflessly and thanklessly serve the Republican Party at the County and State level. Nobody works as hard or sacrifices as much as he does. Though Mac and I occasionally disagree on issues, ultimately we have the same goals in mind. I have watched Mac successfully navigate complex issues in the legislative process and have been there as he has lobbied for more transparency in our state voter data and election integrity.

If you are looking for someone who will pay you lip service and then do the opposite, you may want to look for a different candidate. If you are looking for someone who will shoot straight, serve diligently, listen, respond, and ultimately make your district and the State of Utah a better place, look no further than Mac Sims.
